BULLET MISSES MEXICAN CHIEF

Shot Fired by Army Officer Pierces Coat of Pres. Avila Comacho.

By The Associated Press
MEXICO CITY, April 11—President Manuel Avila Comacho barely escaped assassination yesterday by a young Mexican army lieutenant who later made a break for freedom and was himself seriously wounded.

A bullet fired at point-blank range pierced Avila Comacho's coat, but the husky president helped overpower his assailant, identified as Lt. Jose Antonio De La Lama Rojas, 31. An official bulletin said "several documents from Nazi sources" were found on him, but there was no amplification.

Lama Rojas attacked two guards taking him from the national palace to army barracks, and fled through a suburban street before he was felled by a bullet below his chest. Gen. Francisco Uruquiza, under-secretary of national defense, announced.

President Avila Comacho, who took Mexico into war on the side of the allies, told reporters this "isolated incident" did not represent "a division of the Mexican family." He appealed for calmness, declaring, "let us go forward to make stronger the union of the Mexican family."

He still wore his bullet-term coat when he received reporters. The missile penetrated the coat at the right side in front, breast high, and emerged at the left side near the breast pocket.

There was no immediate explanation why the young officer, a nephew of the late Gen. Samuel C. Rojas, former Mexican army force chief, made the attempt against the president.

It was the first attempt on the life of a Mexican president since a youth wounded President Ortiz Rubio in the jaw a few minutes after his inauguration Feb. 1, 1930. President Don Venustiano Carranza was assassinated in office in May, 1920, and Gen. Don Alvaro Obregon, president from 1920 to 1924, was killed July 17, 1928, after he had been elected for another term.

President Avila Comacho, 46, took office Dec. 1, 1940, after a turbulent campaign.

Why Man's Prayers Did Not Stop Hitler

of people daily practice prayer, new thought spiritual exercises. For years, people of good will have been praying for the overthrow of Hitler, Hirohito and what not. Why has the answer so long delayed? Why do other prayers remain unanswered? Why does calamity visit us in spite of our prayers?

Years ago, in Forbidden land the highest mountain in the world, a young Englishman Edwin J. Dingle answered to these questions. He said: "Why has the answer so long delayed? Why do other prayers remain unanswered? Why does calamity visit us in spite of our prayers?"

Knowledge gives. He says, can transmute the life of anyone. Questions, they are, can be answered. Problems of health, death, life, wrong, can be solved. In case, he was brought to a health too, as well as a professional recognition years ago, he was a man could be and live. When was bought. Years of continuous tropical fever, blindness, near blindness, and danger had made a wreck of him, physically.

about to be sent back to die, when a strange man came. They are waiting. Tibet. He wants to know the world what he can do under the guidance of a mystic he ever encountered. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came to him.

Within 10 years, he was able to retire to this country with a fortune. He had been honored by fellowships in the World's leading geographical societies, for his work as a geographer. And today, 30 years later, he is still so athletic, capable of so much work, so young in appearance, it is hard to believe he has lived so long.

As a first step in their progress toward the Power that Knowledge gives, Mr. Dingle wants to send to readers of this notice a 9000-word treatise. It is free. ## Taxes and the Cost of Living

IF TAXES could be included in the cost of living index, as they invariably are included in the cost-of-living problems of wage earners, the claim to constantly rising wage rates in wartime would be unassailable.

It could be proved that for every rise in taxes there should be a corresponding rise in income to pay the taxes. For instance, a rise in the social security tax for old age benefits, even though it represents a form of insurance, would mean less take-home pay and, therefore, would have to be compensated. A rise in income taxes likewise would mean a smaller residue in the pay envelope and, under the theory of eating the war boom and having it too would have to be offset by a boost in pay.

It is, of course, a ridiculous theory that Americans should be able to put on history's costliest war with no monetary sacrifice, yet it has a large and consistently loud following. There is actually one segment of the following which is so remote from the shape of things as they are that it can not understand why the balance of earnings after deduction of withholding taxes shouldn't be as large as it was before—and not all of its members are motivated by pure ignorance, either.

Perhaps the great discovery of 1944, whatever else may happen, will be that the United States can not fight a major war for nothing. It will cost vast sums of life and vast sums of wealth—and it will not always be someone else who must pay. Taxes are one of the costs of living, to be sure, but if they are not borne by sacrifice they simply have no meaning; they are only an invitation to lower the value of the money in which they are paid.

Volunteers for Production

UNSHOT of all the agitation for more federal authority over production manpower needed to relieve labor shortages in critical lines apparently is going to be a sword of Damocles over the heads of 4-F's not now employed in jobs classified as essential. Men in this category are going to be forced by the already existing authority of the selective service act to move into essential lines of production and service.

They are to become, in a sense, volunteers for production—volunteers, or else. Since their total is estimated at something more than a million, the effect will be considerable, if it occurs. Meanwhile, another possibility in the field of volunteer action is being ignored, or at least neglected. That is the possibility of more effective use of the production manpower already employed in the most essential lines of production and service.

The realization of this possibility would entail suspension of many restrictions on the use of labor. It would entail, besides the lifting of restrictions, a widespread volunteer effort on the part of individuals. It would mean a drastic reduction in absenteeism and turnover. It would mean a general intensification of effort all along the line to offset the loss of workers to the armed forces. It would mean more volunteer enlistment of women in the forces of labor and all other potential, but not yet available, labor—the playboys, the supernumeraries on public payrolls and all others who at present are busily employed at present doing nothing.

When that had been done and if there still were a labor shortage, it would be real and actual. Until it has been done, however, the so-called labor shortage is only apparent.

Unlimited Demand

THERE could be no more misleading formula for post-war planning than the currently popular claim that peace production needs only to equal war production to maintain war boom prosperity.

War boom prosperity is created by unlimited demand for a wide variety of articles produced for military purposes, with relatively no transfer of usefulness for other purposes. It is created by the manufacture of a vast deal of extremely costly equipment which may be destroyed after a few minutes of use. Because there is virtually unlimited demand not only for material to be used directly in waging war but also to be piled up in enormous military stores, the war boom continues for the duration of belligerency, financed as far as possible out of taxation and financed the rest of the way by accumulation of debt. The net effect on real national wealth is, of course, a depletion of resources for the sake of national security.

Only on the supposition of unlimited demand for peacetime goods, backed up by the supposition of those goods being consumed and destroyed at a wartime rate, can the formula of maintaining prosperity by merely continuing wartime production rates be justified. There can be prosperity after the war if peacetime demands can be created and sustained on a basis of real buying power, but to assert, as many are now doing, that production, itself, is the secret is to assert that war boom prosperity is a healthy condition, worth duplicating when the war is over.

News Behind the News

Trend Away from Undisciplined, Easy Way of Schooling Seen.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 11—If you think the educational trust sponsoring the undisciplined, easy way of schooling still easily occupies its mighty seat of dominance, read these following facts. (This column is published by 20 daily paying newspapers with a certified circulation of 10,210,585, plus several hundred weeklies of undetermined circulation, and the facts were acquired through these sources.)

The National Progressive Education association (a sort of Chamber of Commerce of progressive schools) closed and went out of business within the past 30 days.

The National Parent-Teacher magazine, says in the February issue: "Mr. Mallon's keen observations on juvenile delinquency and his approach to the whole problem bring to mind several articles that have appeared recently in this magazine. Whether or not they agree with all Mr. Mallon says, parents and teachers will surely agree that the home is still the cradle of our culture and that discipline should be re-established there on modern psychiatric lines."

New Trend Seen

The (name omitted) school textbook publishing company has sent a confidential memo to its organization to capitalize on the new trend, saying:

"The great difficulty of the past ten years has been that schools have been neglecting the teaching of fundamentals. Isn't it high time that pupils were properly taught to read, write, spell, figure correctly, and a thorough knowledge of geography and history, which are fundamentals of a sound elementary education?"

A new member of the San Francisco board of education, Garret McEnerny, II, has called for "greater emphasis on the three R's" and for public questioning of the educational author of a report on San Francisco teaching methods who pleaded:

"All students in the elementary grades should be promoted without examination or test and should ultimately be graduated from the elementary schools whether they possess the requisite knowledge or not, otherwise their characters will suffer."

"Ain't Made to Study"

"Most children won't study if they ain't made to. And this ain't being done—at school or at home."

The Journal performed a superior job of reporting circumstances in some outlying county schools where the pupils teach the teachers by the discussion method (in which the teacher is not allowed to have an opinion.) But clear-headed, common-sense Mayor W. B. Haristfield has little of that in Atlanta where the high schools are of the best.

The Glens Falls, N. Y. Post-Star says:

"Learning is not play. It is work. Fine, mature, lasting personal goodness—something is not achieved without work, work, work. This truth the education systems must tell the young people. And if the young will not listen, then education should take them by the collar, slam them down in their seats, and say:

"Young ones, we know what is best for you. Now work."

Advice to Educators

The Raleigh News and Observer counseled the State Education association convention:

"Paul Mallon and his serious charges should not be dismissed by a denunciation. Rather all who are interested in public education, the citadel of democracy, should ask themselves:

"Are our schools measuring up to their duty and opportunity; are the children being required to be as thorough as they should in their studies?"

"If not, then the duty of all officials and teachers is first to make a critical examination and take the necessary steps."

A hundred school boards, higher educators, principals, preachers and P-T. A's have asked and been granted the privilege to reprint my 12 articles so far. You can see them in newspaper files, dated Dec. 31, Jan. 14, 17, 25, Feb. 3, 14, 22, 29, March 7, 20, 21, April 4.

The above is just the broth of a ton of evidence which heralds the first turn of the tide. In all, it marks the beginning of the end of the easy way. Such foolishness could not stand in the light of inquiring interest or common sense discussion, both of which are beginning on a national scale.

These developments mean teachers need no longer to fear for their lives, indeed that it has become popular to speak out and seek corrections and improvements to re-establish discipline in schools, shops and conduct in schools, homes, and churches. It will become increasingly popular.

Labor's Divided House

The Independent Unions Want To Sit There Too

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—Little public attention is being given to it, but the campaign by "independent" labor unions for representation on the War Labor Board is shaping up into a battle that the independents contend involves the cherished principle of democracy in labor itself.

To many minds, the term "independent union" automatically means "company union," one of those groups often sponsored and completely controlled by a company out to defeat labor relations laws by hook or crook. There are many independents, however, which are perfectly legitimate labor unions. Some of the outstanding ones are the International Typographical Union, the United Mine Workers and the International Union of Brewery Workmen.

Now Represented

Now represented on the War Labor Board with "labor" members (other board members represent employers and the public), are the CIO and the AFL. Spokesmen for the independent contend that this leaves a sizeable segment of labor out in the cold when it comes to pressing claims for higher wages, which must be approved by the board.

A leader among the independents is Matthew Smith, head of the Mechanics Educational Society of America, a union of highly skilled mechanics, tool and die makers centered chiefly in Ohio and Michigan. MESA has led in the organization of the Confederated Unions of America, dedicated to assisting affiliates and protecting independence and achievements. Labor analysts here estimate the CUA's membership at about 250,000. Sixty-nine unions, many of them small, one-plant unions, were represented at the CUA convention in February.

Message to President

The convention wired President Roosevelt and other officials that lack of independent representation on the WLB "has created a situation that if allowed to remain could cause serious dislocation in our war efforts. It said that after certain independent unions had lost wage cases before the WLB, certain CIO unions had passed around handbills 'openly stating that our contracts failed to get approval because of our lack of representation on the War Labor Board and... that the only way to get approval... is to switch allegiance to the CIO."

This is only one of the many reasons why the independents think they should have representation on the WLB. National AFL and CIO leaders, of course, condemn any such practice, which undoubtedly is the work of a few local organizers.

Neither the AFL nor the CIO have taken a public stand on the question of independent representation on the WLB. Actually, they haven't had to. Secretary of Labor Perkins has said that the AFL and CIO members of the WLB are public officials, responsible for the interests of all labor.

Their Chances

What chance do the independents have of making a place on the WLB? Ultimately the only weapon they have is labor's historic last resort—the strike. The CUA convention passed a resolution calling for simultaneous strikes by "outraged" affiliates if necessary.

If all independent unions in the country pulled coordinated strikes, Washington labor experts estimate they might involve two and one-half million workers. Besides the Confederated Unions of America, they estimate various telephone worker unions at about 500,000. The rest comprise miscellaneous unions, including such big ones as the printers, miners and brewers, a bunch of fairly powerful but not coast shipyard unions and a welter of smaller ones.

Compared with these two and one-half million, the CIO claims five million, and the AFL reports per capita tax paid on about five and one-half million workers subject to WBL rulings. Another one and one-quarter or so AFL members are railroad workers subject to authority of the National Mediation Board under the Railway Labor act. The approximately 350,000 members of the railway "brotherhood" are also governed by the Railway Labor act and so are not involved in the campaign for independent representation on the WLB, although they are independent in that they are affiliated with neither the AFL nor CIO.

Secretary Hull Complimented for Giving a Public Accounting; More of Them Urged.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE highest praise one can give to Secretary Hull's speech is to say that there would be little serious criticism, and much less to criticize, if at reasonably regular intervals he had given such a public accounting.

On Sunday evening he came down from the pedestal of his general principles and talked to us as a moral law giver to mankind but as the American secretary of state. The effect was persuasive and reassuring, and it Hull will continue to render an accounting he will earn a confident support among the people.

He will earn it not by fine words because the administration will make less mistakes that are difficult to explain if it knows that it is going to have to explain them. That is an important reason why democracy is a good form of government.

Foreign policy has been under fire from three directions. It has been charged that the administration is reactionary, and that in Spain, France and Italy it appears and prefers to support reactionary Fascist elements. In the last analysis it was not true that the President and Hull ever intended to do that, but a confused administration of diplomacy often lent color to the charge.

Criticisms Explained Away

It has also been charged that they were defaulting on their moral principles and were not getting on with the work of establishing the international organization promised at Moscow and approved in the Connally and Fulbright resolutions. What Hull had to say about the Atlantic Charter and about the process of reaching agreement at home with congress and abroad with our allies was, it seemed to me, a wise and true account of the problem and how to proceed with it.

The criticism which Hull did not deal with is that the practical conduct and administration of our foreign affairs is not coherent and efficient. Yet what is where the real trouble lies. We have just had a vivid example.

At his press conference on Friday morning of last week, having read and approved what Hull was going to say on Sunday about France, the president himself talked about France. A casualist could, I suppose, reconcile the two statements. But to the ordinary man here and abroad the President seemed to be going in one direction whereas his secretary of state went in a very different direction. This is incoherence in the conduct of diplomacy.

What Hull said was that we would do "advance planning" with the French committee on national liberation so that it could establish "swiftly" the civil administration of liberated France. It would be subject to the supervision of Gen. Eisenhower, but Hull defined this supervision exactly by saying that Gen. Eisenhower would be interested only in those affairs which are necessary for military operations against the enemy.

The French committee, while not a "government" would be the civil authority in France which made the arrangements for elections and the like by which the French nation could establish constitutional government.

Could Have Averted Confusion

If this policy had been announced and adopted many weeks ago when the war department, the state department, the military commanders, the British government and all the other United Nations had agreed that it was the right policy, the whole confusion about American policy in France would have been dissolved. What Hull said on Sunday evening was the whole substance of what the serious critics were asking for.

But, unhappily, the President's remarks on Friday have to be explained away before Hull's statement can clear the air. Mr. Roosevelt said that nobody outside of France knows what the people inside France want. That may be true. But it is irrelevant and wholly beside the main point at issue. The President could not have said what he said on Friday if he had understood the import of what Hull was going to say on Sunday.

How is any one going to find out what the French people want? Only by holding elections. But somebody has to register the voters, print the ballots, set up the polling booths and count the votes. Who can do that? The President acted as if he did not know.

Hull's statement makes it clear (Turn to LIPPMANN, Page 9)

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Pot. Purkey Answers an English Lady

I AM writing you on a most peculiar day because you are the only woman I know who is in close contact with Americans and I have been instructed by my superiors to find out exactly what Americans mean by "once over" and whether the game is fully understood by English girls. I want to find out how this popular game is played and what the rules are considered "standard." From a letter of a British Red Cross worker to a woman in a published in the newspapers.

DEAR LADY:
I seen your letter and when you want to make a thing like that you should be a army specialist. First of all it is not no subject like you say. The only peculiar in the way you try to get set right.

Now, sister, I do not know if the game is fully understood by English girls, but I bet it is. Girls in all countries, especially in England, unless all I read in English poems, novels and histories of baloney, merry England has never been nobody in love and romance. Even some got to be English queens by necking. You a king Henry the Eighteenth who even prizes for it. The first prize was Buck Palace.

The English call football rugby and so cricket so probably they got some other for what we call necking. Maybe it is known crumpley and played with raquets.

But the fundamentals is the same in languages and just in case you ain't kidding want the standardized rules here goes!

1—Only one person can play on a side.
2—No substitutes allowed. If either contends, the contest is over.
3—To start the game both players take a ting position and relax. Do not be tense.
4—Play can be started by blowing a w. This is not compulsory.
5—The first thing to do is establish the Do not hurry.

6—Both parties is entitled to a move first move is made with the eyes. This is playing for a opening.

7—The second move is verbal. What is is unimportant. It is the Sinatra quality in voice.

8—Ten thousand words can be used. But two count, yes and no.

9—Jiu jitsu is forbidden.

10—It is considered unfair for a girl contend to bring her knitting or her brother.

11—A girl contestant is entitled to a crumple. When a checkmate is used the boy contestant may continue to play, using what called a tecknecke or pawn.

12—After the game has been played minutes if there is no score a recess is for the second half.

There is enough rules to give you the But my advice is not to take no rules too seriously. Sometimes contestants make up rules as they along. This is not bad.

Sincerely,

PFC. OSCAR PURKEY

Cotton Corners

By Truman Twill

Dear Nephew: I see by the papers where United States doesn't have any foreign policy. Are they kidding? From where I sit, here at Cottons it looks to me like the United States must have one of the best foreign policies in the world. We haven't been licked yet, have we?

I'll admit I don't know what the experts say for a foreign policy, on account of me just small potatoes. But as I get it from newspapers, everybody else has a foreign policy so we think we should have one so we can keep up with the Joneses.

For example, the British have one of no letting anybody get strong enough to light in Europe, but it seems to me the less about that right now the better. Apper something slipped. The Japs have one, which has something in it about them being to lick the world, and I don't think much to be said about that one, either. The Russians and the French and all the of our good neighbors and bad ones, they have foreign policies, good or bad, depending where you stand to look at them.

But poor old Uncle Sam, he doesn't have a policy. All he has is a strong conviction that when the horse feathers have settled and dust is cleared he should be in there doing business at the same old stand, maybe catch a catch-can, but still doing business. The old doesn't go in strong for writing nasty threatening letters so he can't be sued for it. I'll admit he fumbles through ticklish negotiations and leaves his spoon sticking out of his cup, but foreign policy or foreign policy when it's time to cash in chips he's got some. Maybe that isn't a foreign policy, but less me it doesn't seem to me about as well as the fancy formulas for slickening the opposition that some of the have been using.

I wonder if the foreign policy of this country wasn't laid down a long time ago in that some of our up-and-coming ancestors thought up the one with the rattlesnake on it that "Don't tread on me." The foreigners have come up a lot of schemes to fool us, but in the end they always made the mistake of stepping on our coasts and did something about it. We never picked more than our share of it, but whenever anybody else got to spilling one we gave a good account of ourselves. We didn't always fight fancy, but we fought as well as we had to, and sometimes it was better in other times, depending on the opposition.

I realize I shouldn't try to figure out angles on anything this tough, but it's one of those things I got to turning over in my mind. So I thought I'd write to you about it. I've got a new necktie for Easter and you've got a new hat. We'll make a pretty good no doubt. The necktie is red, with yellow flowers.

facts of open discussion of such matters.

"That's the trouble so far," the governor's statement continued. "The people have been kept in the dark and a feeling of uneasiness about our war aims and foreign policy is evident throughout the country."

"We are told there have been no secret agreements or commitments, political or otherwise. What went on at Cairo, Casablanca, at Teheran and Quebec?"

"Why were reporters kept away from the Hot Springs international food conference by armed guards?"

"What about the disposition of our military installations, airfields and radio stations after the war? Are we going to keep them for our defense or give them away? These and other questions remain unanswered."

In another talk Bricker declared himself against an international police force. He said he opposed anything that would place the military forces of the United States under any world authority. A police force to be effective, he declared, would have to be stronger than the military strength of Russia or Britain or the United States.

Petrich Named Harding Coach To Succeed Dorris, Now in Army

Selection of Joseph Petrich as Harding High school football coach was announced today by E. E. Holt, superintendent of city schools.

Mr. Petrich, named to take the place of Vic Dorris, now in military service, has been line coach and assistant to Dorris for the last two years.

He came to the city school system from Barnesville, O., in 1910, first teaching at Edison Junior High school. For the last two years he had been instructor in industrial arts and physical education at Harding and served as assistant football coach and line coach.

Because of the decision of coaches and principals to shelve spring training this year, he will get his first taste of action in his new duties next fall when the time comes to set up the 1944 gridiron combine at Harding.

Mr. Petrich is a graduate of Lane Technical High school at Chicago and of Miami university where he majored in physical education and industrial arts. He took graduate work at Ohio university, Miami university and Penna State college. He taught school at Russia, O., before going to Barnesville where he remained until coming to Marion.

He and Mrs. Petrich live at 434 1/2 East Church street. As part of duties he already handled, Mr. Petrich will direct the Harding track team in its activities this spring.

OHIO FIGHTERS HOLD BOSTON GARDEN EDGE

By The Associated Press
BOSTON, April 11.—The midwest enjoyed a comfortable edge today as the 32 survivors of the opening day rounds of amateur boxing moved on toward the climactic semi-final and title battles of the national A. A. U. boxing championships at Boston Garden.

Incited by the ever-dangerous Cleveland team, which placed six of its seven contestants in the semi-final brackets, the midwest in all had 15 representatives while the east presented the nearest threat to its supremacy with a total of 12 survivors of the first day of the strenuous grind.

Cleveland's only casualty, Frank Corby of Niles, O., was eliminated in final class in the quarter-finals. Each of the surviving Cleveland representatives is dangerous and gave evidence once again that the Ohio title team would cap the team prize. Two of them gained the semi-final bracket in the 135-pound division when Joe D'Amato of Warren, O., originally entered as a feather, turned up overweight and moved up to the lightweight class to qualify along with rugged Frank Muehle.

In the flyweight class Jack Dardard of Kansas City looks like the likely finalist against Cleveland's Rudy Molinaro while Joey Salome of Warren, O., probably will carry his team's hope in the title bout against Virgil Franklin, an Indian from the Riverside school in Anadarko, Okla.

Ray Standifer of Cleveland and Vance Bassler of the U. S. Navy, now at Harvard university, were the light-heavyweight stickouts, while Sgt. Eddie Sims, USA, another Cleveland, seemed the best heavyweight, despite the tremendous advance reports concerning Jack Thorne Jr. of Newark, N. J.

Sports Writer Goes Out on Limb To Forecast N. C. O. Operation Next Year

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Sports odds and ends here and elsewhere:

The sports scribes in the other five North Central Ohio conference communities haven't as yet had the boldness to risk an out-and-out prediction that the league will or will not operate next season so this corner's going to chance a rash stab in the dark, if only to be a little different.

Hold your hair and go easy on the criticism. We predict the N. C. O. will function next year in both football and basketball with the same six members as last season; namely, Marion Harding, Ashland, Bucyrus, Shelby, Mt. Vernon and Gallon.

That's really a dangerous thing to do. It can very well turn out the other way with the league going to pieces. We'll probably know for sure after tomorrow afternoon's all-important league meeting at Gallon Senior High school. The meeting will start at 4 o'clock, will be attended by representatives from all six N. C. O. schools, and is expected to produce a "yes or no" decision as to whether the league will be disbanded.

There's no denying that Ashland and Marion will vote in favor of continuing the league and from indications, Mt. Vernon and Gallon will do likewise, although their stand on the matter hasn't been so outspoken. It's generally conceded that Bucyrus and Shelby, the leaders of the league "break up" movement, will vote to disband the N. C. O.

There's still a chance that Bucyrus and Shelby can be persuaded to come over to the side of Marion and Ashland. He didn't come right out and say he would be in favor of continuance of the loop next year, but Edwin Gearhart, Bucyrus High school principal and N. C. O. president, told A. C. May, Harding principal, that he might consent to letting his school play in the loop on one condition. That would be: The formation of a second league to operate simultaneously with the N. C. O. in football and basketball next year. This circuit would be composed of Bucyrus, Shelby, Norwalk, Crestline, Upper Sandusky and Willard, and possibly Gallon. According to Gearhart, his school and Shelby would be on even terms with the other teams in this new league but still could benefit from the usually large gate receipts realized from games with Marion and Ashland.

So if Marion and Ashland bosses get in the "salesman" mood tomorrow, they might be able to influence Shelby and Bucyrus to cast their ballots in the affirmative.

A loyal Marion Harding alumnus, whose name is not mentioned here, believes that if Bucyrus and Shelby drop out of the N. C. O., it might be better for all concerned. This local graduate of the early 20's, who now holds a position of importance in the athletic department of northern Ohio university, thinks Marion, Ashland, Gallon and Mt. Vernon would be doing the right thing in allowing Bucyrus and Shelby to bid farewells to the N. C. O. and inviting larger cities to fill the vacancies.

The alumnus has this to say in a letter to this department of The Star:

"As for the N. C. O., I don't see why you are worrying about Bucyrus and Shelby dropping out. In the first place, Shelby was not a member until about 1927, and we got along very well back in the early 20's without her. Then Bucyrus got sore at Mansfield some place along the line and dropped out, and the league functioned very well. So as you see, the best teams want to remain in the league, so why not invite the Tigers that dropped out of the league until they devoted the league until they dropped out of Mansfield—back into the league. Marion, Mansfield, Gallon, Ashland, and Mt. Vernon would make a well-balanced league; anyway much more so than it is now."

"Or better than that," he goes on, "why don't Marion and Ashland hold to the league and let the rest go to grass, then invite Mansfield, Sandusky, Lima Central, and Lima South into a new league. That would be a swell league. It might not work so well until after the war, but such a league would be more to Marion's class. All these schools are non-league members and all support good athletic teams."

"On the other hand I think Norwalk, Willard, Bucyrus, Shelby, Upper Sandusky and Crestline are a natural for a great league. So I'm for letting Shelby and Bucyrus go, but also for seeing Mansfield added to the fold of the N. C. O."

A casual glance at sports:

Marion Mewhorter, Y. M. C. A. program director, says this year's basketball banquet will be a joint affair, with members of both the men's and women's county leagues being honored. Receiving pennants at the affair will be Huber for first place in the men's league, Universal Cooler for second.

and place and Kirkpatrick for third place. In the women's division, Fairfield Engineering will get the first place award and Huber will receive second place.

Al Snell, Palace Recreation manager, has a lot on his mind with all the special boxing tournaments coming up but he also had a lot on his foot Saturday. He dropped a 180-pound ball on his foot and that's nothing to laugh about. In town on a furlough is Chuck Lust of the Army. Chuck would have been a senior at Harding this year but he passed his eighteenth birthday last summer and got his will be short some men. First call in August. He probably one to go was Bob Lee, junior would have been a first string blocking back, to the Navy.

guard for the President eleven last fall. He was badly mugged but Bob Strobel and Dick Lemter did good jobs, even though they were inexperienced. Paul Snyder, for several years head football coach at Mansfield High, was inducted into the Navy last week. The Mansfield team which he has developed will be Marion's first foe next September and a difficult one at that. Last year's Mansfield outfit, which was headed by Harding, 6 to 0, was made up largely of juniors and if they're still around next fall, look out Presidents. Meanwhile, Harding's birthday last summer and got his will be short some men. First call in August. He probably one to go was Bob Lee, junior would have been a first string blocking back, to the Navy.

M'CARTHY CHEERED AS TWO STARS ARE DUE TO COME BACK

Chandler and Bonham Will Report To Play 'Until Army Calls.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Spud Chandler and Ernie Bonham, who between them pitched 33 winning games for the World champion New York Yankees last year, will be back with the Bronx Bombers when the baseball season opens a week from today.

The news that Chandler, who won 20 and lost four, and Bonham, who won 13 and lost eight, will rejoin the team before the end of the week, was a tonic to manager Joe McCarthy. The 34-year-old Chandler and the 30-year-old Bonham both had been certified as acceptable for military service. However, neither has been called up and under the latest ruling of selective service, restricting the drafting of those older than 26, may be able to play for a short time.

Chandler, who turned in an earned run average of 1.64 as well as beating the Cardinals twice in the world series, is expected to join the team tomorrow at either Atlantic City or Plainfield, N. J. Bonham is expected to report Thursday in New York.

Other major league news:

Washington Senators—Outfielder Stan Spence and first baseman Joe Kuhel were heavy hitters as Senators banged out 15 hits in beating Baltimore Naval Station.

St. Louis Cardinals—Only bright spot in St. Louis was arrival of Ted Wilks, Cardinal pitcher. Inclement weather curtailed workouts for both Cardinals and Browns.

Pittsburgh Pirates—Infielder Pete Coscarart expected to start third season with team against Cleveland at Indianapolis. Coscarart, who previously said he'd stick to war jobs at Escondido, Calif., reported yesterday.

Detroit Tigers—Team breaks camp today at Evansville, Ind. Six exhibition games drew only 5,674 fans, one-third of turnout for five games a year ago.

Injuries Pile Up on Tribe To End Boudreau's Luck

By The Associated Press
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—Manager Lou Boudreau, remarked recently his Cleveland Indians have been fortunate in escaping injury this spring training season.

The tribe pilot probably wishes he hadn't commented about it for today trainer Lefty Weisman had three athletes under his care.

Outfielder Otis Hockett damaged his shoulder several days ago and two teammates have joined him on the inactive list. First baseman Mickey Rocco injured his foot in a volleyball game at Lafayette Monday and was unable to play yesterday as the Indians dropped a 6 to 0 exhibition to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pitcher Joe Heying was hit on the leg by a line drive before the game and will have to rest a few days.

Max Butcher limited the Red skins to five hits in the six-inning affair that was ended by a sudden downpour of rain.

Small Business Gets Full Division Rating

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 11.—Expansion of the small business unit of the commerce department into a full division of the agency was announced Monday by Secretary Jesse Jones.

The division will co-ordinate all small business activities of the department and maintain close contact with other governmental agencies and private organizations.

Headed by Quincy Adams of New York, newly designated chief of the department's small business unit, the branch will embrace two sub-sections: a special studies unit and a management aid and finance unit.

Wilford L. White, former professor of marketing at the University of Texas, will head the special studies unit and William Sheperdson, former New York business consultant, the other. Both have been with the commerce department several years.

No Gloom in Boston NOTES FROM THE CLUBHOUSE

WITH AP SPORTS WRITERS

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

BOSTON — There are so many gloomy faces around the baseball offices these days, it's really something to write home about when you come across men connected with the diamond business who can smile.

As a matter of fact, they are so happy in the Boston Braves' clubhouse these days, they are laughing out loud.

The reason? Well, let Secretary John Quinn tell you. He says his father, President Bob Quinn, has the same views.

"The Braves are all through being the dog mat of the National League."

"They don't intend to leave Boston or National League Field."

(That last part is an answer to all those guys who have been trying to move the Braves to another city, or have the team play its games in the Red Sox's Fenway Park.)

Three Bostonians have gained control of the club; there's a new manager and two coaches who have plenty on the ball—all with one purpose in mind—to build up a championship National league team in Boston.

The new bosses of the Braves are not strangers to baseball. C. Joseph Maney, Guido Rugo and Louis R. Perni were stockholders last year, too, but now they have the controlling interest.

The new manager, Bob Coleman, was a coach in 1943. He has been in baseball since 1910 and connected with the Braves' organization since 1937 when he managed the Scranton farm club. Bob is known as an expert handler of pitchers, which should make him a handy man the coming season.

Coach Tom Sheehan was manager of the Minneapolis team in the American Association for the last five years. His former boss, Mike Kelly, says: "Sheehan is the most efficient and best hard base coach in baseball. While managing my club, I do not recall one mistake he made."

The other coach is Benny Bengough, former Yankee catcher, and more recently coach of the Washington Senators.

"We're serving notice on the rest of the National league teams right now that we're going to bring a pennant to Boston," assures John Quinn.

Our new owners are all Boston businessmen. They have plenty of money to buy players and are ready to use the bankroll just as soon as we spot the men we want," continues John.

"What's more, there won't be any selling of good players to other clubs. We're had to do the past, but from now on, keeping all the good ones for ourselves and grabbing all the others to say that the Boston national league franchise should move to another city. The Boston fans over any in country."

"The new owners have been tending games here for 24 years. They know that this is a real ball town; in fact, they have been present on many occasions when fans were turned away because the park was filled."

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

HUGH RETURNED my gaze steadily. Then he put another question.

"If that search should occur today, does your solution include some one to take your place?"

"It does," I replied, then settled back into my chair.

"But before I show you what I mean," I said, "I must tell you something that happened during your absence. It won't take very long."

Listen

"I am entirely in your hands," he said, but he did not change his attitude of alert attention, with his eyes fixed on mine.

"I would not bother you with it," I told him, rapidly marshaling the things I must tell him, and discarding the things which could be left out, "except that it belongs in the account of the way I can help you."

"There is no need for apology," he said smiling. "Go on."

I went on, beginning with the spectacular seven years back of failed Queen Olga of Transylvania, with her daughter, Olga, and Olga's famous emeralds, of crazy Jack Leslie's plot to seize the emeralds, and at the same time kill Noel Veritren, and kidnap Noel's wife, Mary, with whom he had been madly infatuated for years.

I told of the large gang Leslie had built up, including some of the subversive conspirators, on whom my father had had an eye for some time, and of my father's plan to let them keep the farmhouse in a state of siege, in order that he might bag the whole lot.

Discovery

"Then finally, I told him of the discovery I had made of the difference in measurements of our two-hundred-year-old farmhouse, attic chimney and the walls around it, and my suspicion that there might be a 'smugglers' way' leading from the attic to a point in the woods, as there are in other farms in Eastern Long Island. When I finished describing my visit to the ancient gentleman whose ancestors had built the farmhouse, with her revelations that Jack Leslie was a member of that family and probably knew the secret, and her turning over of the complete plans of the secret passage to me, Hugh interrupted me summarily.

"I can guess the rest," he said. "Knowing your father, I have only two questions before you go on. First, is Leslie dead?"

"Yes."

"I imagined so, knowing your father. Second, does anybody save your family know the secret of this passage?"

"I am sure not," I said. "The old gentleman who gave me the secret, and who was the only one beside Leslie who knew it, died last year. Of course the men who followed Leslie through the secret passage, knew of it, but I happen to know that they did not learn of it until the time of their coming. Every one of them either died of wounds, was executed, or was sentenced to years in prison."

Suspicious

"They might have confided the secret to some of their friends or relatives," Hugh said thoughtfully.

"Why?"

"I wouldn't do any good if they have," I said with decision.

"Why?"

"Because, first, the passage, after the steps end, is interminably long. About midway from the stairs to the end, Father had it closed up. He brought trusted workmen from the city kept them at the farmhouse, and filled up the long passage firmly with stones and dirt. Then he had a solid wall of steel covered with iron and wood built across the passage and piled the earth on it. Then he cleared perhaps three acres around it, and planted the space in young maple trees—very close together, so they can be replanted as they get bigger." "You father would," Hugh commented. "Wonderful camouflage! But, is there no way out of the passage on the inner side of the steel wall?"

Camouflaged Exit

"Two," I said, "but comparatively short ones, with adequately camouflaged exits into the woods."

"Has anybody ever tried to find the old entrance?"

"Not so far," I said with emphasis.

"How can you be sure?" he queried, a bit incredulously.

"Because Junior and Roderick have been entrusted with the secret from the beginning. Every day, with elaborate precautions for guarding off discovery of their movements, one of them scouts around for footprints or other evidences of prowlers, while the other stands watch to signal if any stranger approaches."

"The thing is safe, then," he said. "I know what loyalty means in young boys of the right sort."

He stood up and held out his hand to me.

"And now," he said, "as there can be but one possible reason for your telling me this story, suppose you show me this most interesting hideaway."

Hypnotism

THE AVERAGE citizen probably thinks of hypnotism as more or less in the same class as clairvoyance, telepathy, and crystal gazing. As a matter of fact this is unfair. Hypnotism is a perfectly real, proved scientific possibility. Anyone can hypnotize and anybody can be hypnotized. Essentially the hypnotic state can be caused by the rhythmic stimulation of a single sense.

Put a rooster on the floor with his eye glued to a straight chalk line and pretty soon he will fall over in a trance. He has had his sight rhythmically stimulated. Or put a person in a dark room, in a condition of relaxation, and ring a little bell every so often and the trance will result from the rhythmic stimulation of the sense of hearing. Rhythmic touches or stroking of the face and arms will do the same thing.

In the hypnotic state the subject is very susceptible and his judgment is suspended; he will do things that he is told, although they are ridiculous. Sometimes he can do things that he cannot do voluntarily in the waking state.

Several misconceptions about hypnotism are that one can be hypnotized against his will; that is not true, although when a subject has been hypnotized several times he goes into a trance very readily. Also it is not true that the hypnotized can steal the will of the hypnotist subject. That is a holdover from the old novel Tilly by George du Maurier.

Hypnotism has been used in medical treatment for many years. There is currently a revival of it led by a New York psychologist, Mr. Andrew Salter, who has written a book What is Hypnotism? (published by Richard R. Smith, New York).

Mr. Salter has had a great deal of success in treating patients with nervous troubles—nail-biting, stuttering—and also alcoholism. He appears to be particularly successful with patients who are troubled with general shyness. He has had success in nineteen out of twenty patients sent to him.

There is nothing surprising about this as it has been known to the medical profession for years. A Dr. Esdras, at about the time surgical anesthesia was introduced (1845-1850), claimed that in India where he practiced he had been performing surgical operations on natives for years without the use of any drug for anesthesia—merely hypnosis. He came to England, however, and found it did not work on the less susceptible Anglo-Saxon personality.

The new part of Mr. Salter's thesis is that autohypnosis is possible and that the subject can make suggestions which he carries out in the hypnotic trance "exactly," says Mr. Salter, "as I would give them and with the same effect if not better."

Through inducing hypnosis upon oneself by autohypnosis and self-suggestion it may be possible for soldiers to be freed of fear and to feel no pain when wounded. Mr. Salter has trained "three physical and mentally healthy adults to remain completely insensible to pain and the sound of gun fire in the waking state." They can turn this state on and off by themselves. Mr. Salter is trying to persuade military authorities to allow autohypnosis in the armed forces. It will, he believes, render 20 to 25 per cent fear-free in battle.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reader—(1) How can a fat man reduce weight? (2) How can a bald man grow hair?

Answer: (1) By eating one-fourth as much as he does (2) He can't.

H. H. S.—Have read a book by a Russian on "Middle age is what you make it" who says that middle-age folk do not need alkalizing. They need all the acid they can get. Others say take bicarbonate; it won't hurt you. Who shall decide when such authorities disagree?

Answer: Who called them authorities? The Russian sounds like a fake. Soda bicarbonate won't hurt you at any age. But that it changes your chemistry is something else. The human body is neutral in reaction from birth to death, and preserves its neutrality. When you really get acid or alkaline you are in real trouble.
